Making a difference

Why Should Our Students Suffer?

Our future rests in the hopes and dreams of our children. Some will go on to greatness while others will struggle as their parents have before them.

Bonneville UniServ educators recognize that many students in our schools are struggling. Some live without the basic necessities of food, clothing and shelter despite the availability of social assistance programs. Alpine, Nebo and Provo Education Associations have joined with United Way and community groups to serve Utah County children. Children from low-income families who need glasses, hearing aids, shoes, winter coats or dental needs, can receive these items through Kids Cause Coordinators, or by calling Kids Cause at 801-224-2055.

Over 69 schools in Utah County have selected a Kids Cause Coordinator who works with the principal, staff and parents to meet student's needs. Teachers have direct contact with their students and can immediately detect physical ailments that deter students from learning.

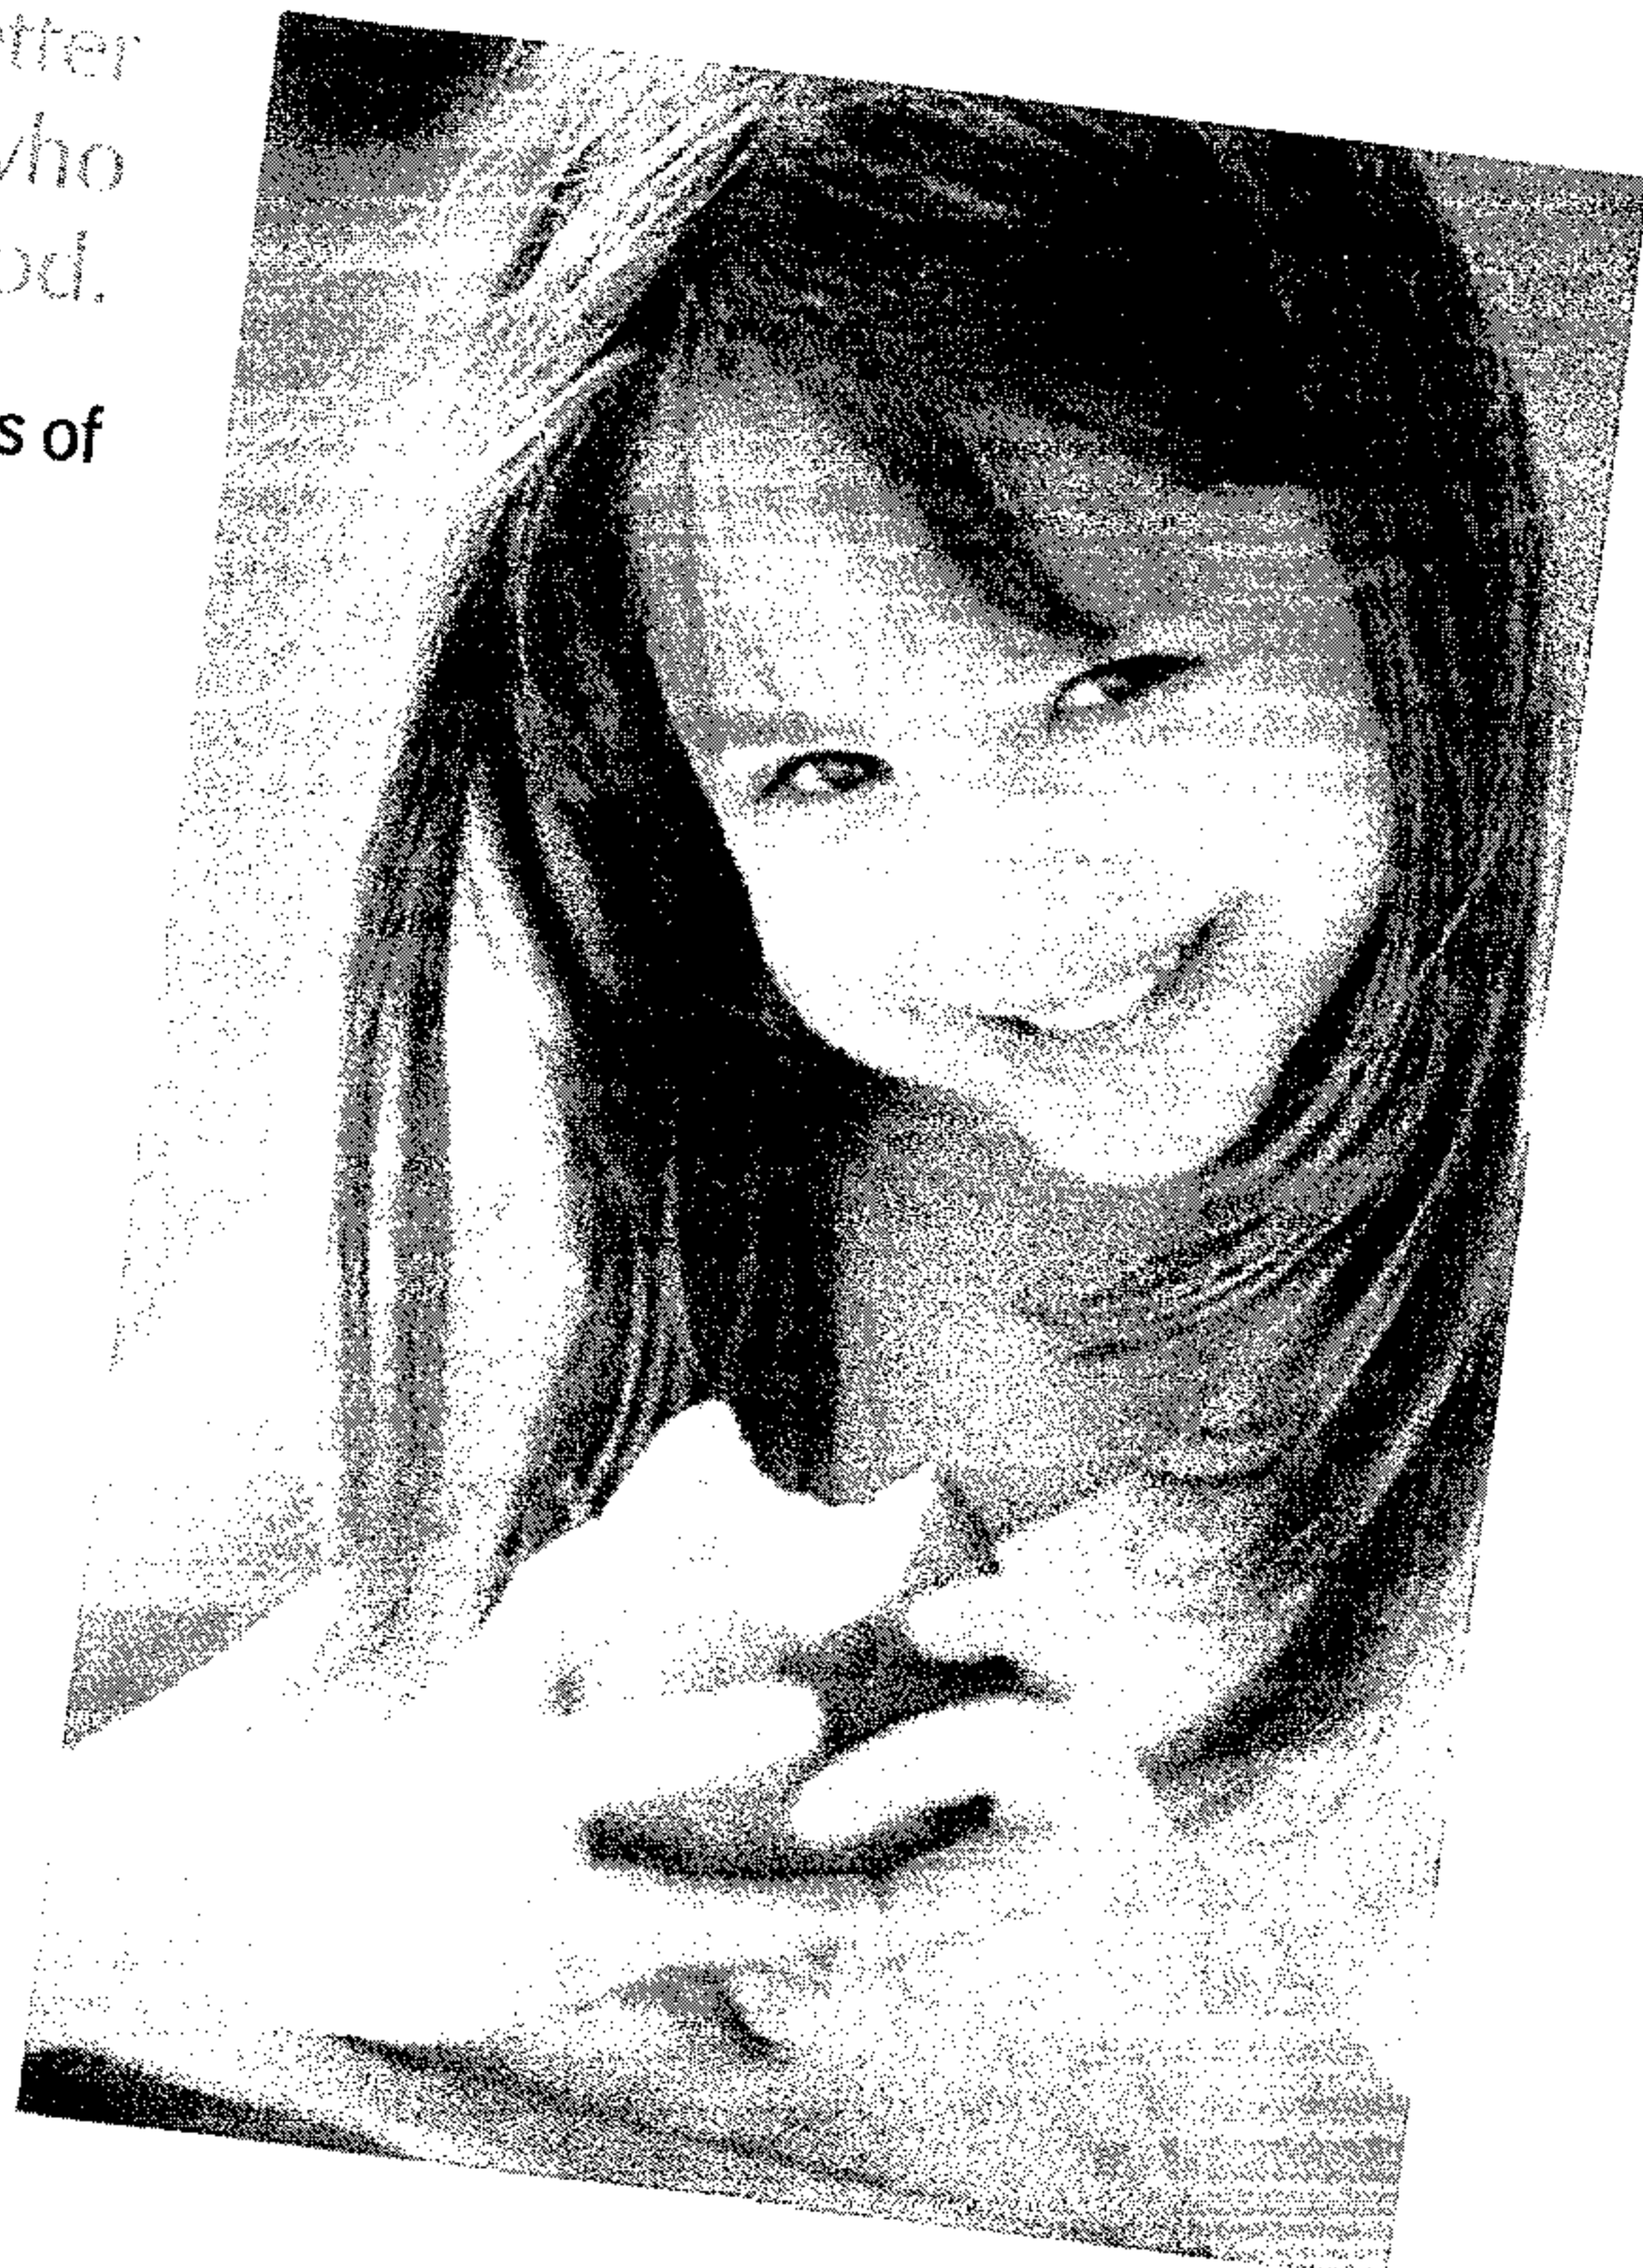

Together We can build a better community by helping the children who live in OUR neighborhood.

Kids Cause works to ensure that the physical, social and emotional needs of the students will not stand in the way of success in the school setting.
